

Open Source Intelligence (OSINT) training for information and intelligence professionals.

Direction: Introduction to Information & Intelligence

Introduction

- Understanding and making the most of what the information revolution offers is one of the greatest opportunities for a modern business to excel. However, if information management is misunderstood or mishandled it can become a colossal headache for leaders and decision makers. It is essential that an organisation is able to cut through the avalanche of information which can often hamper its ability to make clear and effective decisions.
- The first step in this process, is understanding how to harness the power of information by turning it into your own actionable intelligence.
- This briefing is designed to highlight the value of effective information collection techniques and intelligence production. The briefing will show how to make the most of the huge amount of information now available.

Briefing content

- How to identify your organisation's information and intelligence requirements.
- How to organise the information and intelligence flow into, and within, your organisation.
- How to manage the intelligence production process.
- How to protect information as a valuable asset.

Target audience

- This briefing is aimed at executive staff and anyone involved in the collection and management of information and the production of intelligence.
